with the apparent supernaturalness of the whole occurrence.

The reader will judge whether the mystery is solved. All that is claimed for the explanation is sufficient likelihood to prove that, after all, the story may belong to "things in heaven and earth" that are "dreamt of in our philosophy."

MORAL SEWAGE.

who called himself Pierce Egan, cater for the by-part of the rising generation. From these the London by-product of the 1830s, the teens, to despise anything but the most vulgar and the most common, he declares himself far too wide awake for anything of the kind; and so what he requires is something "fresh, new, and 'dodgy," something which combined coarse and refined, which was not without a certain shrewdness, and of that misguided ability which prompts its possessor to wage war against the law. Thus it is that we have stores like that noticed lately in "Freeson," where a young fellow, who is not a day, and while gazing on the ocean and the masts and the chimes of a rover's life, saw some one standing in front of him, and, fearing he was going to be silent of his freedom, buried the intruder to the bottom of the cliff. Some of the other titles are "The Adventures of The Chickadee Cove" and "Not for Joseph, and so forth. The one represents the embryo swimmer in his playful mood, the other depicts him in the state of a madman, whether they form a part of the same series or not. The latter is a piece of literature which is perhaps in its way the very best in Europe. No doubt the very sudden growth of this cheap trash—a growth not altogether to be accounted for by the fact that the paper itself—has gone along with an immense demand for it in what claims to be the highest walks of fiction. We must not blame the penny newspaper while we pass over the three-volume novel. And, of course, for the publisher to refuse to print the vilest trash would encourage the supply of dearer sensational trash on the poorer readers, some of whom may be supposed to know no better. There are very few, however, who are so stupid as to be ignorant, very few who do not bring to the subject a sufficient amount of common sense to enable them to pass sentence on what they read, did they not deliberately give way to temptation and contentedly accept a guidance which they have no right to follow. There is a great mischief of the cheapness and immense multitudes of this kind of trash. People of some position in society may read, and gloat over wicked nonsense of all kinds which would harm the souls of those who are true to their own moral natures. To them it is a loss, too large a stake in the world to sacrifice it for an experiment in rufianism or in sensual lawlessness. They are perhaps as morally bad, but they are not so stupid as to be ignorant of the fact that this is a lower walk of life, who, having nothing to lose, are free to carry out in act the fancies which their sensation reading has given birth to. A well-managed newspaper, however, is not likely to have many imitators in the class which chiefly reads trashy novels; but the grand picture which fills nearly the whole front page of this week's Police News—the portrait of a North German nobleman in his mother's bed with a stinking-pot on the wall—may have many imitators who may be seen hustling one another round all the shops where the Police News is displayed. This paper

offer to those who cannot read five startling engravings, each of which is supported by a paragraph of text, and a vignette of a ruffian at Brighton bawling out a woman with a hatchet, a Somersetshire farmer abusing his wife, and such-like. Sometimes, if the week does not unish English horrors enough, recourse is had to the foreigner, and the reader is reminded of the priest, having cut off the head of the girl he has seduced, was represented burying her in the reeds by the river side. The letter-press may be judged of by the following—“A convulsion of stabbing, suicides, breaches of promise, and such-like, and rows of all descriptions. Most of them, no doubt, have appeared in other papers; the mischief is in their being all thrown together, with little or no relief, and all the more so, because the same mischief among which occurs, strangely enough, the following from Archdeacon Hare—“People fancy the world is becoming Christian, when the fact is Christianity is only becoming worldly. That is about all that is to be seen of the world, which is the only world of bread to all that sack! Now what is to be done? It is easy to realise the fact that such papers and such novels abound—it meets us at every turn. There are many illustrations in which the thrilling tale is all in all to the new and the quiet, and the feuilleton. It is easy to insist on the mischief which a course of such reading must produce. It can hardly be doubted that the great popularity in old Ireland of the tales of the rapparees, and the tales of the highwaymen, &c., tended to create a spirit of lawlessness which has not yet died out. It is by no means so easy to suggest a remedy. We think something might be done by plain, earnest appeals from the pulpit; these would be the only remedy that would reach those with whom the mischief begins, and from whom it creeps down to the lower levels of society; these, too, would awaken parents to a sense of their duty and their responsibility. The sin of Eli is easily prevalent everywhere, and it is the duty of the Christian to stand up through the decay of parental authority and

NEW DIVING APPARATUS.—Late, reports the Globe, some experiments were made at Chatham, for the purpose of testing the merits of a new application of the diving apparatus, invented by Mr. Siebel, superintendent of the navy at Chatham. The first two divers can be sent down in any depth of water, and supplied with air from the same pump. The Admiralty diver employed at Chatham Duckworth descended by means of the apparatus to a depth of 108 feet, and the other diver descended to a depth of 100 feet. The Royal Engineers. Air was supplied to both the divers by means of one cylinder, and after walking a considerable distance and remaining under water for some time, the divers returned to the surface, both stating that they were furnished with abundance of air, while neither suffered the slightest inconvenience. The Admiralty diver subsequently descended to the great depth of 108 feet with two cylinders, and the same was done by the other diver to the depth by Sergeant Baker, of the Royal Engineers, when even at the depth and under the conditions stated not the least inconvenience was experienced by either of the Frédéric Passy is the Secretary-General, has undertaken the publication of a series of statistical forms and at a moderate price, all the publications most suited to make war unpopular and peace attractive. The collection is entitled "Bibliographie des guerres, 1843-1866," and is published by the Secretary War: 1843-1866, gives the following as the losses in men killed in battle or dead from wounds during the period indicated:—Crimes, 75,000,000; (North), 251,000; (South), 416,000; War of 1860, 45,000; distant expeditions, such as Mexico, Cochin China, Morocco, St. Domingo, Venezuela, 1,000,000; total, 1,421,000. The total of 1,750,000 men have been carried off by war from amongst civilized nations. The total is nearly equal to the whole male population of Holland, and not inferior to that of the individuals occupied in France as labourers in manufacturing and commerce, and in agriculture. The United States, 1860, 1,000,000; America, North, 23,500; South, 11,500; Italy, 1500; Holoand, 191; War of 1866, 165,000; foreign and distant expeditions, 100,000; total, 47,500,000. Frédéric Passy is the Secretary-General, has undertaken the task of collecting, in a compendious form and at a moderate price, all the publications most suited to make war unpopular and peace attractive.

The collection is entitled "Bibliothèque de la Paix." The first number, headed "Contemporary History," lists 1,000 titles, of which 100 are new. The losses in men killed in battle or died from wounds during the period indicated—viz., Crimes, 784,991; Italy, 46,000; Schleswig-Holstein, 25,001; America (North), 1,000,000; Spain, 100,000; and the various European colonial expeditions, such as Mexico, Cuchin China, Moravia, St. Domingo, Paraguay, &c., 65,000; total, 1,743,491. Thus, nearly 1,750,000 men have been killed since rising off by sea from the most civilized nations in the space of fourteen years. This total is nearly equal to the whole male population of Holland, and not inferior to the Indian labourers in manufacturing or commercial undertakings. Losses in money were—Crimes war, 8600 millions; America, North, 28,500; Spain, 11,500; Italy, 130; Schleswig-Holstein, 160; and 160,000,000 for the various colonial expeditions; total, 47,830 millions. These are only the immediate and positive expenses of wars, not the indirect, complete; we have not got the losses in Spain in the Crimean, the Crimean, the Italian, and the Paraguayan wars; and St. Domingo; nor that of the South American republics in their struggle with Spain; nor the disbursements of Brazil, La Plata, and Paraguay in the eternal wars of the interior; nor the losses in the contest with France; and, nevertheless, with all these omissions, we reach the terrific amount of 48,000 millions."
